Addison High Musical Groups Rate High in Sectionals

Orchestra receives unusual praise—Is eligible for state finals with band and choir as well as brass sextet—Canandaigua is next goal of organizations.

Addison High School can well be proud of its musical groups by virtue of their showing in the Painted Post sectional contest held Friday and Saturday for all three major musical groups placed to become eligible for the state finals in Canandaigua. Special favorable comment was made on the work of the orchestra with favorable comment for the band and good comment for the mixed chorus. The brass sextet, tried for the first time this year in AHS went over very well with the adjudicators with the result that the six young people in this unit are eligible to compete in the state finals also. Individual soloists from Addison failed to place in competition. They were opposed by some of the best soloists in the Southern Tier in these events as were the other musicians.

Th Addison band received a class II rating with Dansville, Painted Post, Springville, Dundee, Savona, and Wayland. However the last two were in a different division as were the first four, Addison and Dundee being in the C division.

In choirs Painted Post girls placed in the B division and Addison placed in the C division. Also eligible in the state finals in the C division were Geneseo, Hammondsport boys, Canisteo girls and Hammondsport girls. Jasper mixed choir is eligible in the CC division.

It was in the orchestra where Addison received its highest praise from the judges. Addison was not competing here by virtue of last year's victory. Hornell is eligible for state finals in A division, Dansville and Painted Post in B division and Canisteo, Addison and Avoca in C division.

The brass sextet of Richard Gladstone, Robert Burlingame, Peggy Knebel, Frances Colburn, Matthew Whitmore and Edward Russ won favorable praise.

The comments on the various units were as follows: Orchestra smooth tone, required composition played better than competing orchestras and "excellent work"! The judge recommended oboes and bassoons; band, fairly complete instrumentation, lack of dynamic contrasts with a B average on the selections for tone, intonation, interpretation, technique, general effect, stage deportment and instrumentation.

Several parents and others interested in the students or musical organizations attended the sessions in Painted Post. School was dismissed here Friday at noon to give students an opportunity to attend.

Joseph Greyback a former teacher here had his Dundee band at the Painted Post meeting and received a great deal of praise from the Addisonites attending the festival.

The spring concert of Amici Musicae recently held, raised $100 which will be used to help finance the orchestra to the state finals. Glenn L. Sprague, director of the local units states that there are not sufficient funds in the music club treasury to take all units to Canandaigua.

Girl Scouts and their leaders have completed plans for their annual Mother and Daughter Banquet to be held Monday night in the Masonic Hall. Main Street Cleaned—For How Long?

Addison's Street Commissioner Frank French was on the job Tuesday and Wednesday and as a result Main street took a new lease on life and people once more were enabled to see the pavement which has been coated with dirt.

A truck load of debris was removed from the block between Wombough and Steuben streets. The refuse includes cans, papers, cinders, banana peels, apple cores, dirt and dust and many other things collected during the winter months.

The question among people along the street now is, "How long will the street remain clean?" Many people sitting in cars throw fruit skins, papers and other things out of car windows and Main street business men instead of depositing dirt in the alleys in the rear, sweep store refuse into the street, adding too the general muss.

During the times of the flushing, people in the vicinities effected are asked to draw sufficient supply of water to meet their needs until the water clears, for with the large flow of water from the hydrants, disturbances are set up in the water system. And the water will be discloroed until that condition clears. Hence the request for households to draw water before 1:30 each afternoon to last them for three hours.

Raphael McKay, Canisteo, R. D., and Rober Birningham, Rexville, were arrested here Monday and held for the action of the Steuben County grand jury on charges of grand larceny in the second degree in stealing a motor car and damaging it.

The car was owned by William Russ. He parked it on Main street while at the theatre Sunday evening with the keys in it. It is charged that the defendants drove the car to Rexville and drove a piston through the cylinder block and damaged the car in other ways.

Monday morning they were brought before Justice of the Peace Will B. Leete and agreed to pay for the damage done and no charge was preferred against them on that basis.

Later in the day a warrant for their arrest was issued on complaint of Mr. Russ, who was represented by Attorney Hugh Varn, both were arrested and appeared before Justice Leete again and held for grand jury action. Attorney Charles Salerno appeared for Mr. McKay and secured $1,000 bail for his client upon arrival at the Bath jail. Hi-Lights and Shadows of the Week's News

Nazi sources admitted a set-back in the attempt to subjugate Norway Monday night. Granting British advances at Narvik the German high command insisted other parts of Norway were more important for the prosecution of an air war against Britain.

* * *

The British announced Narvik was captured by Norwegian and British forces Sunday after a three day seige during which seven Nazi destroyers were sunk by the allied fleet led by the warship Warspite. Up to Sunday when the German pocket battleship Admiral Sheer was hit by a British torpedo, Britains claimed over half the German fleet had been sunk in the fight for Norway. At the same time a vast mine field was reported strung along the German coast from Kiel Canal to Lithuania to impede Nazi vessels trying to carry troops and supplies to Norway.

* * *

Danish wealth in this country has been impounded by the government pending settlement of the status of that little country which the Germans commandeered last week. The President issued an executive order forbidding the withdrawal of Danish or Norwegian funds from this country without a special order. Americans have investments of 100 million dollars in Denmark.

* * *

Sabotage has been headlined by officials of Norway as the principal reason Nazis so easily gained a foothold in their land. Spies and traitors in Oslo and other Norway cities paved the way for an easy conquest by issuing falsified orders and crippling Norwegian defense arms.

Mrs. Cheeny to Seek 2nd Term In Assembly

The session of the Legislature which has just closed and where I completed the unexpired term of my late husband, Guy W. Cheney, as Assemblyman from the First Assembly District of Steuben, was a very important and busy one. Many bills were considered which required careful and conscientious study. I attended a great many of the hearings on these bills and also attended every meeting of the Legislature and never missed a roll call vote on any measure.

I was very graciously received and treated by all of the Legislative leaders, both Republican and Democrat; and many organizations and individuals have told me they believe my record as a first year member entitles me to a renomination by Republicans without opposition. Personally I feel that the experience I gained there and the many contacts I made in the Legislature and the Governmental departments at Albany can be of considerable assistance to the people here in this first assembly district of Steuben.

I am therefore announcing my candidacy to succeed myself as a Member of Assembly from Steuben's First Assembly District, and I wish to take this opportunity of expressing my gratitude to the many people who so kindly assisted me and made it possible for me to succeed my late husband in the Assembly. I pledge to them and to all the other people of this Assembly District a continuance of conscientious effort in their behalf.

"The American Way" Stressed at Boy Scout Father-Son Banquet

Over 160 men and boys dine at high school—Scouts have full charge of program with Dick Gladstone as toastmaster—Cubbing program outlined—Basis of Scouting outlined by Principal Jackson of Big Flats—Music and fun aid program.

Tribute to the Boy Scout movement, its founders, program and accomplishments was given Wednesday night at the annual Father and Son banquet held in the high school. The largest group to attend a banquet in Addison in many months was present at this tribute to the American Bay and the Boy Scouts. There were 161 boys and men.

Stress was laid on the freedom and initiative and resourcefulness of the American boy as compared to the regimentation, the lack of leadership and the youth programs of foreign nations.

The program was by and for the boys under the leadership of Andrew W. Knebel, chairman of Troop 27 Troop committee, to whom great honor is due for the success of this undertaking.

The program opened with prayer by the Rev. Nicholas Van Cossaboon of the Methodist Church. Mr. Knebel set the stage for the program by thanking the boys and men for the splendid turnout and asking that consideration be given to the boys. He then presented Richard Gladstone, who presided as toastmaster.

Dick Gladstone is TM.

Scout Gladstone in turn presented Scout Marvin Ricker who acted as song leader for a program of old and new songs. Miss Janet Taylor was accompanist.

The banquet was served by the members of the senior class of Addison High School in the commercial rooms of the school. Miss Phyllis Harley, home economics instructress supervised the arrangements.

The arrangement of seating provided for an alternate boy and man throughout the room and those present ranged from four years to the three-score and ten. Guests were present from Woodhull, Cameron, Cameron Mills, Hornell and Painted Post. Mr. Knebel presented William J. Warner, chairman of Troop 29 and Thomas E. Kelly, secretary of the same troop committee, both of Painted Post.

The formal part of the program opened with a piano solo "Rachminoff's C Sharp Minor" played by Carlton Dartt, a short talk on "What Scouting Means to Me" by Scout Charles Whitmore of Troop 27. He said in part, "The movement was founded by Sir Baden Powell when he found that 45 percent of England's youths had not occupational possibilities after school. He originated the movement with its merit badge system to give them vocational guidance. And when the idea of Scouting came to America, the merit badge system was carried with it. Out of the more than 100 merit badges, boys may choose hobbies which may lead to future occupations. The United States is often called a melting pot. Scouting is more than that. In America we have nationalistic sections where people of Italian, Jewish, German and other extractions congregate. In Scouting these mingle".

Miss Ida Haweeli of the high school faculty explained the history and operations of various types of puppets and marionettes for the members of the Addison Women's Civic Society Thursday afternoon. The meeting was held in the Presbyterian Church parlors. Mrs. Clifford Moyer presided at a short business meeting. A resolution, introduced by Miss Katharine Darrin to have the annual election in June was tabled for future consideration. She felt that by electing in June officers will have the summer months to prepare programs.

Miss Haweeli was presented by Mrs. Lee O'Reilly, chairman for the day's program. Miss Haweeli described the rod puppets, the finger puppets and the marionettes as the first being operated from a rod and by strings from underneath, the second by the insertion of fingers in the doll body and the third, marionettes, being operated by strings. The last named are the most lifelike and most flexible. She explained that doll shows are quite prevalent in European countries, especially in France and Italy.

Members of the Addison High School French II Class were presented and gave three plays in French, all of which were readily understood by the audience owing to the action of the characters.

Those who took part in the puppeteering were Carlton Dartt, Peggy Knebel and Vivian Jacobson in "The Three Wishes", Helen Horey, Glenora Towner, Peggy Knebel, Dick Gladstone and Ralph Vona in "Little Red Riding Hood" and Anne Flynn, Ralph Vona, and Richard Gladstone in "The Swollen Glutton".

MASKS ARE OFF

The current session of Congress which opened in January with a fanfare of economy gestures, has settled back into its customary role of throwing money to the seven winds irrespective of how such action affects the country. Irresponsible though the course of appropriations has become it does weave a definite pattern, the pattern of handing out money to groups likely to swing their votes towards the party with the longest Santa Claus whiskers.

Spend, spend, spend, has been the theory of the Democratic Administration which occupied Washington in 1933, and spend, spend, spend will be the refrain until the last New Dealer has been driven out of the seat of government. Congressional protestations of economy sounded well in January and February when election was still nine months away, but as the days grow longer the sentiment grows stronger for trying to buy another term at the expense of the long suffering taxpayer. For several years there has been an election formula which has worked like a charm—the formula of soaking the middle-class fellow who is hit the hardest by taxes and handing the cash to the classes who vote as a group. Mr. Roosevelt taught the lesson well to his followers and they will continue the plan until enough Americans come to their senses and get rid of the spenders.

There is only one possible way to save this country from bankruptcy as well as the loss of our American system of free enterprise. That is to rid Washington of the crack-pots and theorists who have gobbled our national life like a cloud of locusts. The Corcorans, the Cohens, the Hopkins, the Franks and scores of others of their ilk must be rooted out body and britches. It has come to be a case either of their defeat or the loss of true American Democracy. No compromise or half measure will suffice.

The efforts expended in trying to sell a third term are born of the necessity of despair. Trying to elect a Corcoran, a Hopkins or any one of those pink theorists would be as impossible as electing Al Capone a Methodist bishop. Their only hope of continuing to inflict themselves and their ideas on the country is to hide behind the much exploited Roosevelt charm.

Congress is like a drunken man seated on the railway track with his back towards the engine. That is an old simile borrowed from the Bryan campaign of 1896, yet it is true today. A few Democratic representatives and senators appeared to sense the danger last winter but with the approach of spring the idea grew that they were tied inseparately with the New Deal crowd with whom they have been associated for seven years. The voters of the country would be satisfied with no half-way measures. Promises of economy had been broken too many times to be believed again —judgment in this election would be passed on the history of seven years, not on any eleventh hour reform such as a demonstration of real economy in 1940.

So Congress has again gone on a spending spree. The people know it, which is well. The issue in this election will clearly be the failure of the New Dealers to lead us out of depression and unemployment. Mr. Roosevelt has been trying desperately for more than a year to make people forget his domestic failures by headlining foreign dangers, but the immediate concern of a majority of Americans is that of restoring jobs for the millions on relief who are willing to work.

Congress having abandoned its death bed repentance for the sins of profligacy now will come face to face with an electorate determined on a change. Doubtless Congress will succeed in dodging the issue of raising the debt limit—dodging it by appropriating just enough money to carry through until after election. Perhaps a tax boost will be avoided in the same way, but the people will be acquainted with the fact this is only a dodge. The money received on the old national homestead has been spent, even though the mortgage has not been foreclosed. Masks are off and the voters can point to the villains in November.

LESS LAWS—MORE FOOD

According to the Federal Surplus Commodities Corporation, 14,000,000 families in the United States have an average annual income of $312, and an additional 8,000,000 families have an average income of only $758. As a result, twenty-two million families can spend only $1.00 to $1.62 per week per person for food.

Economic theorists and politicians of all stripes have bandied figures like these about the country for years. The economists don't agree, and neither do the politicians on the solution to the problem. But while their heads have been high in the clouds of acrimony and debate, the rest of us have had to get along as well as we know how.

One fact is clear. In the long run, if we are to eat at all, it will have to be through our own efforts. You can't eat economic theory, and government panaceas are short-lived. Modern retail distribution has done more for consumers during recent years than most of us realize. There has been a steady reduction of "in between" costs. Distributors have cooperated with producers on an ever-increasing scale. Producer-consumer campaigns in which thousands of retail merchants join with farmers in promotional drives to move surplus crops into consumers' homes, have been amazingly successful. Too, retailers have worked wholeheartedly with the Surplus Commodity Corporation to adequately feed those in dire need. The food stamp plan has proved successful in many territories.

These are only a few of the measures that promise to go far toward solving America's nutritional problem. The biggest hazard to success lies in the continual agitation of political and business minorities who seek to abolish the natural laws of retail competition by working for man-made laws that embrace stringent price-fixing and class taxation. These laws are the enemies of the 22,000,000 families who need more food.

A STITCH NEEDED

Many Addison people had real cause for being thankful for the dikes during the spring floods of this year. When the deep snows began melting and both creek and river started on a rampage householders in the low sections of the village were saved serious inundation only by the embankments which held back the crests of the streams.

However, rejoicing over escape from floods this year should be tempered by the knowledge the creek dike will not withstand many such attacks by flood waters without being swept away. The section of the dike north of the B & O. railway bridge near the sharp bend in the creek was cut considerably by high water in 1939. The current in Tuscarora Creek this spring has greatly aggravated this erosion along the dike and unless this section is reinforced before another flood comes along all the residents across the creek will eventually find their houses surrounded by water again as they frequently were in the past.

For several months the Village Board has delayed repairs on the dike hoping the federal government would take over the task in conjunction with other flood control work. The reason is obvious; that local citizens should not be subjected to expense that comes quite logically under a department of government for years held responsible for protecting the lives and property of persons living in areas subject to floods. On the other hand, if action is not taken by army engineers in the near future to protect local property, then village officials should act to save an investment of thany thousands of dollars in building the dikes. A little reinforcement with brush and stones where the dike is cutting away would save flood threatened residents for a number of years.

Board members should bear this in mind if federal work on the dike does not materialize in the near future. The old adage of a "stitch in time saves nine" was never truer than when applied to the cutting away of dikes by flood water.

UNDER THE AXE

In 1934, by an extremely close vote, Congress passed a law looking to the ultimate destruction of utility holding companies. The administration of this "death sentence" law was placed in the hands of five men, a commission with sweeping powers.

Now that commission is threatening certain utilities with the rigorous application of the law. Commenting on this, David Lawrence recently wrote: "The present adventure in tinkering with a $12,000,000,000 industry means that for the next few years there is bound to be stagnation if not deflation while the whole power industry is plunged into chaos, thus interfering with expansion and re-employment . . .

"An American investor, who put his savings into a piece of property whose management complied with the letter and spirit of the State and Federal laws then existing, must now subject his holdings to the hazards of dissolution by the Federal government, the threat of which has already produced incalculable losses to honest investors and honestly financed companies . . .

"The death sentence provision of the utility law is the first really far-reaching attack on the American system of private ownership ever made . . . What is about to happen to the electric light and power companies can affect farms, stores, manufacturing and retail establishments if it is finally decided by the Supreme Court that under the newly interpreted commerce clause, Congress can say at will who shall own what and who may combine with anybody else to own property outside or inside any state in America".

A ruthless policy that decrees the "death sentence" for a power company can decree the same treatment for any business. The interest of the utilities themselves is the least important factor. What is important is the precedent—a precedent that, if it is upheld, can mean only the beginning of the end of the American way of life, and sacrificing on the block of bureaucratic greed an economic and social philosophy which has brought the American people rewards unequaled in world history. If the axe falls on the utilities, the whole country will feel its bite.

Question. It death inherited?

Answer. Natural death is inherited. Man inherits his physical makeup which determines how long he should live so, depending upon how one approaches the subject, it can be said either that death is inherited or that man's longevity is inherited.

Man dies in pieces. His rather complicated organism and some part of his system eventually breaks down. The respiratory system often breaks down first resulting in death for the rest of the body is dependent on that system.

Man in general tends to die at somewhat the same age at which their ancestors have died. As a result, people are classified into three general groups of 30 years, 60 years and 90 years with respect to the length of their lives.

Scientists have established phenomena similar to these longevity groups in man through careful studies of the fruit fly, the tiny fly which comes through our screen doors during the canning season. These insects are found to fall into three groups with longevity of 30, 60 and 90 days respectively.

If a person who has inherited a tendency to live 60 years marries a person who has inherited a tendency to live only 30 years, the longer longevity would prove dominant and the children of such a union should have a tendency to live 60 years. Persons who are interested in these phases of life and death should read "The Biology of Death" by Raymond Pearl.—Dr. Ernest Reed, geneticist.

Question. What is night blindness?

Answer. Night blindness is the inability to see well in dim light. It is due to a deficiency in Vitamin A, recent studies have revealed. Persons who suffer from night blindness can clear up this deficiency often times by eating carrots and drinking carrot juice. A tendency to have night blindness may be inherited but night blindness itself is not inherited. — Dr. Verlus Lindeman, physiologist.

Question. Should poplar trees be planted in cities?

Answer. No, because the roots of poplar trees, seeking water, get into sewer connections, lift sidewalks and are easily broken by storms. The poplar is just about the poorest tree one could plant anywhere in a city or village. Some communities have an ordinance against planting poplars on all real estate extensions on the streets, but there are generally no regulations to prevent planting such a tree in one's own back yard or elsewhere. — Prof Nelson Brown, forester.

Question. Why does the lawn become humpy every spring no matter how carefully it has been leveled off the year before?

Answer. The bumpy condition of lawns in this part of the world after the winter weather is due to changes in temperature. The ordinary freezing and thawing of winter is responsible for the condition. A lawn underlain with a heavy clay will have many of these bumps. When the lawn is of a very deep, rich loam, the alternate freezing and thawing will not produce an extremely uneven surface.—Dr. Reed.

Question. What is a community forest and how can it be used to decrease taxes?

Answer. A community forest is one owned and operated by a community such as a village, city, county, school district or other division of government. These growing forests under efficient management yield lumber, pulp wood, and other forest products of considerable value. Some communities in Europe have been tax free from several up to one hundred years or more because their forests yield profits sufficient to take care of all their taxes.

Many thousands of these forests are to be found in Europe. When trees planted in community forests become large and mature, they may bring in annual revenues continually. They help also to keep the domestic water flow pure and clean, offer recreational outlets, add to employment opportunities, beautify the landscape, and in many ways are helpful to the community.

About 1,500 of these community forests which have proved to be the most successful and profitable form of forestry in many sections of Europe are now started in the United States. New York State has 598 community forests.—Prof. Brown.

Question. If a spring is coiled or depressed and immersed in acid solution which will eat away the spring, what becomes of the energy which the coiled spring contains?

Answer. The energy in the coiled spring is converted into heat energy. The amount of heat thus produced would be small.—Dr. Albert L. Elder, chemist.

Some ugly words are being bandied about the village over the administration of justice in a recent case here and I'm sure that all is legal in the case. However, I sort of wonder what started the delayed action?

Was talking with Walter Goff and Mel Hubbs recently about Addison, people and business and the like and we all sort of argued that we are not sociable enough here. We don't mix with our neighbors enough and when we do we are sort of embarrassed, when we should not be.

Tuesday's Ad Club meeting should prove a revelation to some people of this community for they will see themselves in the motion pictures taken locally. Most of the pictures will be unrehearsed and unknown to the participants. And a treat is in store when the voices of some of those at the banquet will be thrown on a loud speaker so they can hear themselves "as 'ithers hear them."

Th death of Mrs. Lyman, Steuben street, Saturday morning removes a colorful character from our midst. She was 90 years of age. To me that in itself was remarkable, to think that a woman was still alive who was born in the year the gold rush started in California. Her life marked a span of over half of the life of the United States. Thoughts of this always intrigue me when I write of those older people who are fast passing and in their passing our country is losing valuable contacts with the past.

Commencement time is coming in high schools throughout the land and with it comes many problems for boys and girls and for parents. One of these involves the matter of wearing apparel. There are those who hold for lots of dress up and frills at any expense. On the other hand, there are those who believe in simplicity. I'm of the latter school.

Parents spend a great deal of money educating children and all this fuss at high school graduation seems an anti-climax and leads to a rude awakening when the boy and girl gets out into the world. And some girls and boys cannot be as well dressed as others in the class and this leads to a miserable feeling throughout all the festivities. What I'm driving at, I think a lot of heartaches and much expense can be eliminated by the wearing of caps and gowns by both girls and boys.

A western newspaper publisher created a furore in his community last month by publishing the names of all those eligible to vote in his community, who did not exercise their right of franchise in the village and primary elections. He was called patriotic by some, a busybody and snooper by others. Yet, those who called him vile names would be the first to protest if the right to vote were taken from them. It is only through the vigilance of an alert press that Americans still retain the liberties they do enjoy, liberties greater than any other country in the world.

You should have heard the quiz contest at the Ad Club meeting Thursday night. And what surprised me was the amount of general knowledge in the heads of some of the contestants. The questions were stickers in some ways. For instance, name the last ten presidents of the U. S. in order and also name the first ten presidents of the United States in order, where is the Zuyder Zee, who was Dan Patch, who won the world series of 1926, what is the first word in the Bible and so on up for 150 questions.

Can you imagine Old Man Winter returning to the stage to play an encore engagement Saturday? And no one applauded his appearance either as far as I could learn. The thermometer, on what was supposed to be a beautiful April 13th, hovered around 22 degrees and snow flurries bothered all day. Anyway, I got out of some spring house cleaning.

Fifth of July stories on hundreds of premature explosions, carelessness with fireworks, children being burned and maimed, will be a thing of the past in newspaper offices throughout New York State after this year. And I'm sure newswriters will rejoice with parents over the passage of the state law banning the sale of fireworks, except for public displays.

—o—

It is never pleasant to be a newswriter on the fifth of July or after a week-end holiday, for then you have to interview stricken parents, friends and relatives, look at torn bodies, see wrecked cars. And it all seems so useless, so unnecessary. So, I for one am glad of the law, and I lke fireworks as well as the next one.

That's all.

Raising Orchids
Russell C. Mott

Many more persons would grow orchids if they realized that growing them is not difficult. Any lover of fine plants can grow orchids in the home; the bay window, or better yet, a small greenhouse will do. The greatest excitement comes when a plant produces a flower that will last for several weeks.

Start with the Cattleyas, the popular corsage orchid. They are best known, and growing them does not demand unusual treatments. After the grower learns to manage one kind, he can try others, such as the Lady Slipper types.

The Cattleya plants do well with little care, and they stand more abuse than most of the other species. As with other plants, light, ventilation, humidity and watering are important. Any good grower of orchid plants, or the floriculture department at Cornell, can supply the detailed information.

Orchids grow well outdoors during the warm summer months, but cannot receive full sunlight. Suspended from a tree or vine-covered pergola, the plants would receive the proper amount of light. Ways should be provided, however, for more watering and syringing of the foliage when the plants are outside.

Dish For This Week

With the maple sugar season here, many housewives want to try new ways to use the sirup in their meals. This pudding, suggested by the New York State College of Home Economics, uses maple sirup as well as milk and eggs, which are high in nourishment.

Maple Nut Pudding

1 quart of milk
1/4 cup of brown sugar
1/4 cup of maple sirup
1/4 teaspoon of salt
3 tablespoons of cornstarch
3 egg yolks and 3 egg whites
1/2 teaspoon of vanilla
1/3 cup of walnut meats

Heat the milk in a double boiler; mix the salt, sugar and maple sirup with the cornstarch until the mixture is smooth, then add it to the scalded milk, stirring constantly until it is thick. Cook it slowly five to ten minutes after the mixture has thickened, stirring it occasionally.

Beat the yolks well, pour some of the thickened pudding on the yolks, return the mixture to the double boiler and cook for one or two minutes. Then add the nuts, chopped fine. Beat the egg whites until they are stiff and either fold them into the pudding after it has been removed from the double boiler and the vanilla has been added, or they may be served on top as a meringue.

A suggested luncheon menu might be vegetable chowder, pineapple and cottage cheese salad, whole wheat muffins, maple nut pudding, milk for the children, and coffee, tea or milk for the adults.

Shelving the original health program sponsored by Senator Wagner of New York, which called for an outlay over a ten-year period of $8,500,000,000, the Senate is about to consider the rural hospital plan which calls for the construction of fifty hospitals in rural areas at federal expense. Under the plan these hospitals will cost around ten million and when completed will be turned over to rural communities who will operate them and pay all maintenance costs. Recent surveys indicate that there are 259 rural areas in the United States that do not have adequate hospital facilities.

The Immigration Committee is working on several new bills, one of which has as its objective the allowing of many thousands of immigrants to enter the United States. It is estimated that about five million foreign refugees want to come here. There is one group in Congress which would stop all immigration until we catch up with our employment problem, figuring we already have about ten million unemployed people here. Another group wants to cut the present quota figures and still another group wants to raise this quota. What to do with the millions of foreign refugees, all wanting to come to the United States is one of the big problems facing Uncle Sam today.

Back in 1852 representatives and senators didn't get much of a salary. Some died here and it is said didn't have money to get buried. There's a cemetery on the east edge of town with a few hundred headstones under which lie former senators and representatives. One headstone has the name of Henry Clay who was a senator from Kentucky and who died in June, 1852, and buried there. Later he was moved to Kentucky. The stone remains in this old cemetery. Two presidents have been buried there.

For the past four months a special committee of Republicans has been studying the many aspects of the farm problem. One of the ways to increase the consumption of farm products is through farm chemurgy or chemical adaptation of farm products to industrial manufacture. As an instance of this it is shown that into the construction of every million Ford V-8's today, go 89,000,000 pounds of cotton, the crop from 558,000 acres for making upholstery, brake-lining, timing gears and safety glass; 500,000 bushels of corn, the harvest of 11,280 acres, for rubber substitutes, butyl alcohol and solvents; 2,400,000 pounds of linseed oil, the yield of 17,500 acres of flax for making paints, core oil, soft soap and glycerine; 2,500,000 gallons of molasses, from 12,500 acres of sugar cane, for making anti-freeze shock absorber fluids and solvents; 3,200,000 pounds of wool, from 800,000 sheep which go to make upholstery, gaskets, anti-rust, floor coverings and lubricants; 1,500,000 square feet of leather, from 30,000 head of cattle for making upholstery and hide glues; 20,000 hogs to supply 1,000,000 pounds of lard for lubricant, oleic acid, and bristles for brushes; 350,000 pounds of mohair, from 87,500 goats for making pile fabrics for upholstery; 2,000,000 pounds of soybean oil from the crop of 10,000 acres for making the lustrous and long-wearing enamel.

This week the House passed a reapportionment measure which automatically becomes effective sixty days after the President transmits to Congress his report of the 1940 census. An effort to reduce the number in the House from 465 to 300 was defeated as were proposals to exclude aliens and disinfranchised Negroes from being included in the basis for determining the size of representation. It is expected that the new census will result in increased representation in Congress by some states and decreased by others.

Mrs. Charles Lyman, Nonagenarian, Dies

Mrs. Charles Lyman, 90, died Saturday morning, April 13, 1940 after a serious illness of only four days. She had been in good health until last Wednesday when she suffered a stroke and failed from that time.

Despite her age she was active mentally and physically and able to be about the house at all times. She made her home with her son-in-law, Charles Cook, for the past 30 years.

During her active life she made many friends in Addison and was well known to most people of the village as well as to her immediate neighbors. And many admired her courage and fortitude.

Mrs. Lyman was born Rachael Eldridge on December 14, 1849 in Sabinsville, Pa. Her parents were the late Thomas and Emmaline Eldridge.

She became the bride of Charles Lyman when a young girl. He was at that time employed as passenger conductor on the B. & S., later the B. & O. railroad. They had two children, a son, killed on the railroad in Addison and a daughter, Cornelia, who married Mr. Cook. She died seven years ago. Mr. Lyman died 40 years ago and since that time, Mrs. Lyman made her home here.

Funeral services were held Tuesday afternoon from the Cook home, Steuben street. The Rev. Russell O. Kirsch of the Church of the Redeemer officiated. Burial was in the family plot in Sabinsville.

Uses for Asparagus

One of the earliest spring vegetables is asparagus, and perhaps it is at its best when freshly boiled and served hot with drawn butter, but left-overs may also stimulate appetites when attractively prepared.

Casseroles: Casserole dishes using asparagus are easy to make and the food keeps hot during the meal.

One that combines an attractive green and white color and good nourishment is asparagus custard. Put 4 cups of cooked asparagus, that has been drained and cut into one-inch lengths, in buttered casserole dish. Beat 2 or 3 eggs slightly and pour over them two cups of scalded milk, mix well, add 1/2 teaspoon of salt, a few drops of Worcestershire sauce and, unless the milk is above average richness, a teaspoon of melted butter. Pour this mixture over the asparagus, set the casserole in a slow oven (about 325 degrees Fahrenheit), and bake until the mixture is set (about 35 minutes).

Shortcake: To each two cups of medium white sauce, add 1/3 to 1/2 cup of grated cheese. Place the hot asparagus between split halves of individual baking powder biscuits or slices of buttered toast, and pour the cheese sauce over all. Crisp bits of bacon sprinkled over the cheese sauce make an attractive and tasty garnish.

Soups: The liquid drained from cooked asparagus contains mineral salts and flavor worth saving This liquid may be seasoned and served as a broth with the children's mid-morning or mid-afternoon lunch; or it may be diluted with milk and thickened with egg yolk to make a soup.

To make this soup use two yolks to four cups of hot liquid and cook in a double boiler; beat the yolks slightly, add a few tablespoons of the hot liquid, mix, then place this with the remaining liquid in the double boiler. Stir and cook the soup for about five minutes. Season it with salt and paprika and serve with crackers, toast or cheese croutons.

Mushroom Peelings

Miss R. D., writes: "I have been told that the caps of mushrooms should be peeled before cooking because of the fertilizer used in growing. It this true?'

Professor Faith Fenton of the College of Home Economics answers: "There is no reason for discarding the peeling of mushrooms. In fact, more of the flavor is in the skins than in the meaty part of the mushroom.

"It is true that barnyard manure, covered with a little soil, is used as a fertilizer. However, the mushrooms come through this material surprisingly clean, according to specialists in vegetable crops. However, all mushrooms should be washed well before using".

Roily Water

H. G. M., writes: "I drilled a well 64 feet deep with a six-inch casing three years ago. The well has had 62 feet of water, but I did not use it until last fall. The water has been clear until recently, and I pumped the well dry several times to try to clear the water. Now it does not come in very fast. What would you advise?"

Professor C. N. Turner of the agricultural engineering department answers: "It is difficult for us to help you determine the cause of the roily condition of the well. Sometimes it is caused by surface water that enters the well, sometimes by blasting, and sometimes the pumping is not sufficient to clear out the fine sedimentary particles from the water strata which the well taps.

"Since you have not used the well much, perhaps the water will clear upon continuous pumping and using the supply. Otherwise it indicates that surface water is entering the water table from which your supply comes"

Steuben Farmers Reforest Idle Acres

Waste land on more than 100 farms will be reforested this spring by as many co-operators in the Agricultural Conservation Program, announces the Steuben County Farm Bureau.

These men will take advantage of the new reforestation practice which pays at the rate of seven dollars and fifty cents an acre for the planting of seedlings to land unsuited to crop production. As much as four acres can be planted in one year and a maximum payment of thirty dollars per co-operator is allowed.

Unlike the other practices of the Agricultural Conservation Program, the reforestation payment is an outright grant, and is not deducted from the soil building allowance as is done in the case of lime, superphosphate, seeding and similar practices.

Provide Planting Service

A crew of trained and experienced workers is being organized to plant the seedlings, the farm bureau announces, in order that the trees will be so planted as to get the best possible survival.

Still another advantage of the planting crew is that the seedlings will be put in the ground early so that the roots will be well established by mid-summer, and thus better survive the hot, dry weather of that time.

Orders for the tree planting service are now being booked, and those interested will contact the farm bureau office for details.

The Way of Bureaucracy

By RAYMOND PITCAIRN

"He has erected a multitude of New Offices, and sent hither swarms of Officers to harass our people . . ."

* * *

"The right of the people to be secure in their persons, houses, papers, and effects, against unreasonable searches and seizures, shall not be violated . . ."

Here are two distinctively American statements. The first was written into the Declaration of Independence as a protest against the oppressions which brought on the Revolution. The second was written into our Bill of Rights. Together they express a fundamental national concept—that the citizen's right of privacy in his own life and his own home should remain inviolate.

But today millions of Americans are wondering just how far that principle is still honored. Today when more than 120,000 census-takers have been knocking at their doors to demand answers to personal questions that no earlier census asked, they are wondering if the American Spirit in Government has changed.

For they know that the men who established our Government never contemplated such a thing as forcing American citizens to reveal to census-takers—who may be political appointees or neighbors or both—the many personal matters, including wages, salary and other income, asked of some 130,000,000 American citizens in the 1940 census.

How, then, it may be asked, did America come to depart so far from these safeguards of the right of every man to personal privacy?

The answer is obvious. It is the old story of Bureaucracy feeding upon its own power. It is the story of what happens when politicians and job-holders are permitted to go their own way unchecked by Congress or the people.

Bureaucratic snooping is not new —even to America. During the past few years we have seen much of it. But heretofore it has invaded the rights of only small and politically-uninfluential minorities — and for that reason has been tolerated by the people. Then, emboldened by the absence of effective protests, it insisted upon prying into the intimate affairs of every citizen.

Such are the methods of Bureaucratic oppression — yesterday the few; tomorrow the many.

That is how Bureaucracy always gains power, as the current history of totalitarian Europe, with its growing record of minority and religious persecution, will show. That is how Free Government is weakened.

That is what the Fathers meant when they said: "Eternal Vigilance is the Price of Liberty." And that is what the people recognize when they protest against increasing invasions of their right of privacy.

"Virginia City" Opens Saturday at Fox Theatre

With Errol Flynn in the type of dashing role that had "Dodge City" breaking records, and Miriam Hopkins awarded the important leading role on the strength of her fine performance in "The Old Maid", Warner Bros'. "Virginia City" promises to be one of the Fox Theatre's major attractions of the season, when it opens Saturday.

MIRIAM HOPKINS — ERROL FLYNN

The background of the film is a page out of America's most gripping historical era, the West during the Civil War. The setting is the colorful, lawless "mushroom" mining town, Virginia City, during its rowdiest days. The theme recounts an authentic episode which Robert Buckner adeptly wove into the moving screen play. Michael Curtiz, one of Hollywood's most skillful directors, filmed the production.

As a Union Intelligence officer, Kerry Bradford, portrayed by Errol Flynn, is sent to the new Virginia City to track down a gold shipment intended for the Confederacy, sent by Southern sympathizers in Nevada. His romance with the Queen of Nevada's dance halls, Julia Haynes, Miss Hopkins' role, is short lived when the girl has him kidnapped and he learns she is a Confederate spy.

Bradford is taken prisoner on the Southern gold caravan, led by Vance Irby, played by Randolph Scott. When attacked by bandits, led by a notorious guerilla, portrayed by Humphrey Bogart, it is Bradford who outwits the band and saves the caravan. He refuses to surrender the gold, claiming it belongs to the men who mined it. Held for court martial, it is news of the war's end that exonerates him in the eyes of the North, the South and Miss Julia Haynes.

The impressive supporting cast includes such seasoned players as Alan Hale, Frank McHugh, Guinn "Big Boy" Williams and John Litel.

"The American Way" Stressed at Boy Scout Father-Son Banquet

Scout Whitmore then extended a general invitation to parents to attend meetings and take a greater interest in Scouting and in this way Scouting "will never fail".

Father and Scouting

Hubert Dininny gave "Adoration" as a violin solo. Irving R. Gladstone then spoke on "A Father Looks at Scouting". He spoke of the resourcefulness of Scouts and spoke of experiences in Scouting. Mr. Gladstone said in part, "Scouting teaches a boy to know what to do. It teaches him a knowledge and love for nature. Practical first aid is taught in a manner which gives parents confidence that their boy will be cared for on hikes in emergencies. If I had my way every boy would go to camp to mingle with other boys and learn to stand alone. Then he would not be lonesome when he left home as I was and thousands of others of my generation. A Scout learns group consciousness and personal responsibility".

Cubbing

"The Storm King" was presented as a sousaphone solo by Scout Matthew Whitmore. Leon W. Robbins, Painted Post, chairman of the Steuben Area Cubbing program explained that program as "leisure time character and personality development program of doing natural things in natural surroundings with natural leaders. It prepares boys for Scouting for the program is designed for boys from 9 to 12 years. Boys elect leaders and are supervised by an older Scout and a mother or father of some member of the gang. It is a natural play group under supervision".

Scout Executive Wallace Hill congratulated the group on the showing, and conducted several stunts to liven up the fathers and the sons and the men who brought some one else's son. He presented Scoutmaster William Miller and assistants Lyle Dickey and the Rev. David Davis of Woodhull.

William Perkins, vocalist of radio station WESG, sang two solos, "Without a Song" and "Little Mother of Mine."

The speaker of the evening was Carlton Jackson, principal of Big Flats High School and a former Scout commissioner who spoke on "Scouting—the American Way."

The American Way

He spoke as follows: "The American is an individualist and every boy here is an individualist and not regimented to one line of thought and reasoning as are the German youths who are taught to report their parents for incarceration in concentration camps if the parents express anything anti-government. Boys here are not trained for a military machine. Scouting needs leaders. It trains for citizenship for peace. Military training is not enough for boys or men.

Scout Purpose

"The three purposes of Scouting as defined in the charter are character development, Americanization and good citizenship. Scouting provides a good reading program, stimulates patriotism, has positive rather than negative plans for boys. Men get more out of Scouting than boys for it challenges them. It offers wider contacts to men and boys, presents different outlook on life, and gives a boy opportunity to do things, has health values by outdoor life, keeps a boy busy, he learns several skills, helps character development and aids a boy to do things more honestly.

"When you all sing the last two lines of the National Anthem 'Oh, say does the Star Spangled Banner yet wave, over the land of the free and the home of the brave', you say to yourself 'yes, sir, God willing, for this is the American way".

The meeting closed with the pledge of allegiance to the Flag, the singing of America and benediction by the Rev. John V. Axtell. Scout Ricker blew "Taps" and Mr. Knebel thanked the Senior Class members for the splendid supper, Miss Taylor, the out-of-town guests, Miss Harley, the hostess of the evening and others who made the affair a success.

Galeton—Dr. James T. Hurd, who has practiced medicine for 50 years, was one of the two 50-year veterans given awards by the State Medical Association.

"When a Feller Needs a Friend"

Monday morning the campaign begins to secure the funds necessary that the boys of your own community may enjoy Scouting for another year. This week the Boy Scouts will deliver to your door, leaflets explaining in detail the advantages of Scouting, this will be followed Monday by groups of representative men from your village who will call and ask you to cooperate.

Here is a suggestion that may help you in estimating values when you pull out the wallet and start to peel off a few frog skins.

Please don't forget "Skinney" or any' underprivileged lads 'on the other side of the tracks". When the other boys start for Camp Gorton next summer, all tricked out in their splendid uniforms, it is barely possible that some young deserving hearts may be aching if your village limits itself just to raising enough to meet the Steuben Area Budget. It would take so little more to make it possible for every lad of Scout age to enjoy the fun and enthusiasm of Scouting, and isn't it true that "across the tracks" lie the temptations that may cause "Skinney" to look in the wrong direction for his companionship and pleasures? Your boy and my boy need Scouting, but more than all others "Skinney" and HIS pals, if they are to become loyal American citizens, should learn about American ideals and American patriotism from some one familiar with right principles. Give the underprivileged lad a break—now is your chance. Give to your Boy Scout campaign next week, and give generously.

When the Boy Scout campaign is over, your Scouts in uniform will deliver their "Thank you" messages to all who contributed.

During 1940 there will have been enrolled over 1,925 Scouts in the Steuben Area, with 135 Cubs. The largest enrollment known in the Area, yet the budget is no more than for last year.

Not a troop was lost during the past year and seven troops were added.

The Council program for 1939 was 96 per cent completed and January 1st a new and improved system was devised and launched with important additions, geared to strengthen the troops and to extend the camp service and activities.

The Council capably assisted by the Scout Executive has done a very fine job of preparing to serve the boys in your community in 1940, but it is important that each community do its proportionate share as well as that each responsible person in the community shall contribute. Your boys are counting on you—and so is "Skinney". I don't believe you will disappoint him, will you? Thanks.

Old Erie Timetable Of 1860 Found

Boiling Spring, Godwinville, Mast Hope, Lordville, Hales Eddy, Hooper, Union, Campville, Rathboneville, Hornellsville, and such places were regular stops for Erie trains in the days before the Civil War according to a copy of a timetable found by Lynn A. Taylor recently.

The timetable has no date on it but was due to take effect November 26, 1860. It is marked "No. 7" and it is believed that it was the seventh timetable printed by the "New York and Erie Railroad."

The trains are listed as follows: "Eastward bound, 16 Hog; 8, Stock 6 Mail; 4 Night Express and 2 New York Express." "The westward bound trains were: 1, Dunkirk Express; 3 Night Express; 5 Mail; 7 Way and 13 Express-Freight".

The train times are listed on the front side of a large sheet of paper, divided by the mileage from Dunkirk and the mileage from Jersey and they in turn divided by the "names of stations and passing places".

Stops made in this vicinity were Big Flats, Corning, Painted Post, Addison, Rathboneville, Cameron, Adrian and Canisteo. Certain stations were listed as "where trains will stop for refreshments.

Nathaniel Marsh was the receiver for the lines and "Cha's" Minot was "Gen'l Sup't." It is noted that all five trains stopped at all places in Steuben County on the railroad line.

Baptist Youth on Safari At Bath Meeting

Thursday, April 11 young people from the Baptist Churches of five counties gathered in the Baptist Church of Bath for a Regional Youth Conference, one of several held in the state last week.

Young people from as far west as Cuba, N. Y. and as far east as Waverly, from as far north as Avoca and as far south as Athens, Pa., and young people from at least 25 different churches came together to study the problems relating to youth and their solutions.

The program was divided into several parts with competent leaders for each part. There were three Inquiry Groups, "Youth and the Choice of a Life Work" led by Miss Irene Lyons, director of Life Service, B. Y. P. U. of A. "Youth in a Changing World" was the second group led by the Rev. Charles O. Harding, pastor from Oswego and director of Camp Clough, Intermediate Young People's Camp. "Youth and Problems in the Home" was led by the Rev. Ward Hurlburt pastor at Albion.

The second half of the morning was given over to project groups and again the young people were allowed to choose which ever project they wished to attend.

"Youth and Religious Art" was led by the Rev. Kenneth Cober, director of Christian Education for Baptists in New York; "Youth and Religious Music" was led by Miss Esmah Orcutt, Michigan State Director of the World Wide Guild and "Youth and Leisure Time" under the direction of the Rev. Harding proved to be the most popular project group.

After the lunch hour the sessions were resumed and followed much the same program as the morning, each group continuing from where they left off in the morning.

Fine fellowship and fun was enjoyed by 135 young people at the supper hour served in the Grange Hall.

The speaker of the evening meeting was the Rev. Leslie Brown, a returned missionary from Belgian Congo who told of the work missionaries are doing in Africa.

Those attending from the Addison church were: Oneta Smith, Blanch Shelanskey, Alberta Murray, Naomi Burrell and the Rev. M. C. Johns.

Brisco Tries For Harmony At State Meeting

Clarence Brisco of Corning tried to avert a schism in the Republican state delegation when the state committee met recently. A resolution was introduced by the followers of one of the aspirants for presidential honors, which many committeemen believed was aimed at Kenneth Simpson. The resolution set the stage for a pledged delegation, to which many Republicans object.

Speaking on the resolution, Mr. Brisco said in part:

MR. CLARENCE BRISCO, Steuben County: Mr. Chairman may I look at the resolution, please?

CHAIRMAN [illegible]KLE: Yes Sir, (handing resolution to Mr. Brisco).

Mr. Brisco: "I am a member of the Republican State Committee from Steuben County. Like most of you I have never participated or taken part in any executive sessions of this Committee, and I have listened to this resolution read for the first time, and I have heard it discussed, of course, by no one, but I speak on this question, ladies and gentlemen, as one from a small county, as many of you committee members are, from a county known as a rural county. In Steuben County it has been our good privilege individuals numbering many thousands, to vote year in and year out the Republican ticket, because it is their philosophy of life and their philosophy of politics.

Now, then, our particular small county is a part of the thirty-seventh Congressional District, and in that district we have selected two very honorable men as the delegates to the great convntion.

It is my thought, ladies and gentlemen, that we belong to the Republican State Committee. We have not elected these delegates. These delegates are elected, of course, by the people in our party in our respective Congressional Districts. Therefore, why should this Committee, ladies and gentlemen, presume to undertake to arrange, dictate, outline, set forth, or in any way suggest to these various delegates what they should do in respect to their own organizations? They are competent, recognized, outstanding leaders of our party.

I emphatically urge you to lay this thing entirely on the table and to forget."

Business Men Win Quiz From Teachers at Ad Club Supper

Business men outpointed the teachers, 5708 to 5665 in a close and hotly quiz contest given at the Advertising Club meeting Thursday night.

The hilarity of the evening's program began when a team captained by John Davis provided a supper for the team captained by Charles Salerno, winners in a membership drive contest held recently. The losers started by serving a doughnut and cup of coffee to the winners and called it quits. When a roar went for something to eat, the doors of the Masonic hall kitchen were opened and the losers trooped in with roast beef, mashed potatoes and all the fixings.

President Milton Crane was called away and Vice President Dr. Amos G. Stiker, presided. He presented Kenneth McCaig, member of the Addison Promotional Booklet committee who in turn presented Patricia O'Reilly, winner of a slogan contest held in the high school under the committee auspices. Miss O'Reilly was guest of the club at the supper.

Andrew Knebel, chairman of the Advertising Club-sponsored Boy Scout troop committee, spoke of the Father and Son banquet plans.

Dr. Stiker then presented Harry Mullen, chairman of the program committee. He in turn presented the members of the faculty quiz team as Principal Irving Gladstone, Kenneth McCaig, Frank B. Finnerty, Bernard Wilson and William Lundrigan. The business and professional team was headed by Attorney Charles Salerno with Andrew Knebel, Ray S. Brown, Dr. Stiker and Robert A. Willson as participants.

The contestants were lined up and the teams alternated in answering. The first man to raise his hand on a team was permitted to answer the question. An equal number of questions was given each team with over 150 questions on politics, history, science, current events, sports, geography, the World War and the Bible being given. Melvin G. Hubbs was timer and he had a bell to use. The judge and scorer was the Rev. Russell O. Kirsch and Mr. Mullen was the inquisitor

At the half way mark in the contest the business men were 35 points to the good and at the conclusion led by 43 points. Some discussion developed relative to some of the answers. At the half way mark, the participants quizzed Mr. Mullen on subjects of their choice. The members of the winning team were given penny suckers for their efforts.

Members of the losing team preparing or serving the supper were Mr. Davis, Walter M. Goff, Dr. Stuart H. Bean, Dr. Matthew Whitmore, Winfield S. Long, Andrew Knebel, Irving Gladstone, Maurice E. Miller, Horace G. Crane, Samuel M. LaGrange, Harry Mullen, Wilfred Miller, Carl Rouse, Maurice Tyson and Fred G. Wilcox Mrs. John B. Davis supervised the preparation of the meal.

There were 52 at the supper. Howard Strait was presented as the guest of Mr. Wilcox.
